University of Hawai'i Press selects Project MUSE as hosting partner

(HONOLULU, Hawai'i) The University of Hawai'i Press, a leading publisher of scholarly works in Pacific Island and Asian Studies, is pleased to announce they have selected Project MUSE to host, manage, and deliver journal content to their growing audience of librarians and readers.

Subscribers can access decades of scholarly work as well as innovative new works, from 40 years of Biography: An Interdisciplinary Quarterly to the newest issues of Asian Perspectives: The Journal of Archaeology for Asia and the Pacific and the Journal of Daoist Studies. Other notable titles include Pacific Science: A Quarterly Devoted to the Biological and Physical Sciences of the Pacific Region, Philosophy East and West: A Quarterly of Comparative Philosophy and the Journal of World History: Official Journal of the World History Association. The MUSE platform features personalized options to share content, follow titles, save citations, and discover related scholarship.

"Selecting Project MUSE as our hosting partner just makes good sense. As an academic publisher, we feel Project MUSE is the logical choice since their platform was designed by the academic community for the academic community," said Pamela Wilson, Journals Manager at UH Press.

The Press currently publishes or distributes 24 academic journals, two literary and 22 scholarly. "We have a considerable amount of book and journal content already on the platform and have been a partner of Project MUSE for many years," said Wilson. "We look forward to building upon our long-standing relationship as we continue to enhance the platform and offer more functionality and features to our individual, society and library customers."

"Project MUSE is pleased to partner with the University of Hawai'i Press to host and deliver all of their journal content for both institutional access and individual readers," said Wendy Queen, Director, Project MUSE. "This marks a significant step for MUSE in the direction of providing customized solutions for our participating publishers, offering them more options for serving their content on a platform that operates from within the scholarly community and seeks to balance the needs of presses, libraries, authors and readers."

The Project MUSE platform has linking relationships with indexing, abstracting and search services, which facilitate access to content. The platform also allows users to:

- Search across books and journals in one place and at the same time
- Share discoveries with colleagues on social media
- Access book and journal table of contents and sample full-text journal articles and book-chapters for free
- Sign up for RSS Feeds

- Sign up for email alerts
- Save citations from the browse and search interface
- Save searches and view search history for the current session
- Browse related content
- Review frequently downloaded content listings

About UH Press

The University of Hawai'i Press (www.uhpress.hawaii.edu) supports the mission of the university through the publication of books and journals of exceptional merit. It strives to advance knowledge through the dissemination of scholarship—new information, interpretations, methods of analysis—with a primary focus on Asian, Pacific, Hawaiian, Asian American and global studies. It also serves the public interest by providing high-quality books and resource materials of educational value on topics related to Hawai'i's people, culture, and natural environment. Through its publications the Press seeks to stimulate public debate and educate both within and outside the classroom.

About Project MUSE
